UNITED NATIONS GENERAL ASSEMBLY RESOLUTIONS ON SELECT NUCLEAR WEAPONS ISSUES (2001-2011)

VOTES BY KEY STATES

BY YUKI ZAITSU

A Briefing Paper for the 67th Session of the United Nations General Assembly

September 25, 2012
INTRODUCTION

Voting in the United Nations General Assembly is an important way for a state to express its stance on issues of concern. While the resolutions adopted by the UN General Assembly are not binding, they do reflect how countries feel about the issues addressed.

This study demonstrates states’ postures on nuclear weapon issues, such as nuclear disarmament and nonproliferation, by observing states’ votes on the resolutions considered by the UN General Assembly.\(^1\) In order to make voting patterns clear and concise, this paper is limited to select resolutions adopted in the last 11 years – from 2001 to 2011. For the same reason, this study only observes voting patterns of 11 key states (United States, Russia, France, United Kingdom, China, India, Pakistan, Israel, North Korea, Iran, and Japan). The first five states are the recognized nuclear weapon states under the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons. The next four states are known to possess nuclear weapons. Iran and Japan are also included because of their unique situations.\(^2\)

This paper has two sections. The first part consists of tables that show the numbers of resolutions, “yes” votes, “no” votes, abstentions, and non-votes each year by state. In addition, there are tables that illustrate percentages. Readers can see at a glance how particular states responded to nuclear weapon issues in comparison to other states – how, for example, any two states, such as the US and Russia, compare to each other, or to a third state. The second part of the paper focuses on specific resolutions. In this section, readers can see how states’ attitudes toward specific nuclear weapons issues have changed over the years – whether a state is becoming more or less favorable in its votes on any given resolution.

\(^1\) This study is based on the UN General Assembly Voting Records, which can be found on the website of Reaching Critical Will: http://reachingcriticalwill.org/disarmament-fora/unga

\(^2\) Iran is accused by some countries of having a nuclear weapons program, even though all known intelligence reports say that Iran ceased nuclear weapon-related activities in 2003. Japan is the only country in which nuclear weapons were used during war (August 6 and 9, 1945). In addition, Japan’s national security strategy has relied heavily on the US “nuclear umbrella.” Moreover, due to its large nuclear energy program, Japan has stockpiled many tons of plutonium that could be used to build nuclear weapons.

23. Renewed determination towards the total elimination of nuclear weapons
24. International Day against Nuclear Tests
25. A path to the total elimination of nuclear weapons
1. Comprehensive Nuclear Test Ban Treaty

- Basic Information about the CTBT
  - The treaty aims to ban any nuclear weapon test explosion.
  - The treaty was adopted by the UN General Assembly in 1996.
  - As of 2012, 183 states have signed the treaty, 157 of which have ratified it.
  - Among the 44 Annex II states, whose signature and ratification are required for the treaty to enter into force, three states (North Korea, India, and Pakistan) have not signed, and five states (China, US, Israel, Iran and Egypt) have signed but not ratified the treaty, as of June 2012.
  - Full text of the 2011 resolution → Here

- The GA Resolution voting pattern 2001 - 2011
  - The United States voted against the resolution until 2008 but has been voting for it since 2009.
  - India has been abstaining from all votes.
  - North Korea has never voted for the resolution and has been voting against the resolution since 2009.
  - Other states have been voting for the resolution, including Pakistan, a state that has not signed the treaty.

- Other relevant information
  - The US, China, Israel, and Iran have not ratified the CTBT.
  - India, Pakistan, and North Korea have not signed or ratified the CTBT.
  - The US changed its voting pattern after President Obama’s inauguration in 2009.
  - Before voting against the resolution, North Korea conducted a nuclear weapon test for the first time on Oct. 9, 2006. After its second nuclear weapon test on May 25, 2009, North Korea has voted against the resolution.

2. The risk of nuclear proliferation in the Middle East

- Basic information about the Resolution
  - It aims to establish nuclear-weapon-free zone in the Middle East, in order to enhance peace and security in the region and to consolidate the global non-proliferation regime.
  - It calls upon all states in the Middle East to accede the NPT, to renounce possession of nuclear weapons, and to place all unsafeguarded nuclear facilities under full-scope IAEA safeguards.
  - The resolution specifically mentions Israel as the only state in the Middle East that has nuclear weapons and has not yet joined the NPT.
  - It was adopted by the General Assembly for the first time in 1994.
  - Full text of the 2011 resolution → Here.

- The GA Resolution voting pattern
  - Israel and the US have voted against the resolution every time.
  - India has abstained every time.

- Other relevant information
  - India and Israel have had a close relationship since the normalization of relations in 1992.¹ Jerusalem Post
